

Evelyn C. Granieri, MD, MPH, MSEd

Professor of Medicine

Chief of the Division of Geriatric Medicine and Aging
Columbia University Vagelos College of Physicians and Surgeons

Dr. Evelyn C. Granieri has served as a fellowship director, a director of a teaching nursing home, and headed geriatric medical education and clinical services at multiple medical schools. She has also designed and implemented palliative medicine curricula and interdisciplinary training. At Columbia, Dr. Granieri developed the Division of Geriatric Medicine and its rigorous curriculum that has been the source of education and training for medical house staff and other healthcare professionals. She teaches locally, regionally, nationally and internationally and has been nationally recognized for her contribution to geriatric medical education.

Dr. Granieri's professional passions are caring for frail older adults and teaching other healthcare professionals to provide informed and compassionate care for vulnerable older adults. During the height of the pandemic in New York City, she worked for more than 80 days straight to deliver care to hospitalized older adults with COVID-19.
